

Lewis & Clark Homework*Due in class on Friday, 9/11*Name: _____

You've been assigned to read a week of the journals of Lewis and Clark. They are available online at: <http://lewisandclarkjournals.unl.edu/>, a terrific site with the full text, maintained by the University of Nebraska, Lincoln. The journals are searchable by date in the pull-down menus under "Read the Journals" (or put your assigned date into the search window and it should pull up the first entry of your week). You may also want to read, or at least glance over, the "General Introduction" (Read the Journals → General Introduction), and some of the other maps and materials to put your week in context. Your week is likely to have daily entries by Lewis and/or Clark, and perhaps some of the other members of the expedition as well. Helpful footnotes may address confusing passages.

As you read, fill out this sheet by hand, or (preferred) cut and paste the lower half into a word processing document and type your responses, using as much space as needed, and bring it to class on Friday as a printed-out hard copy. Please do this assignment even if you are shopping the course and are not sure if you are going to stay. You'll need your work in hand on Friday in order to participate in our discussion and be counted as present & prepared.

---

Assigned week: 7 days beginning with _____, 18__

Summary in your own words of what happened that week:

What stood out/ impressed/ repulsed/ moved you:

What this week tells you about the U.S. and/or the trans-Mississippi West at the time:

Questions you had after reading: